ADELAIDE Rams must have the focus to win against SANFL outfit Woodville-West Torrens, coach Justin Leppitsch says, after his side took a massive step towards the Grand Final with a 21-point win over West Perth. Rams skipper Sam Kasiano was outstanding in besting West Perth with a commanding kicking display at Norwood Oval on Saturday. Kasiano's four-goal effort helped set up a strong case for him to be crowned the SANFL's player of the year. Leppitsch said the Rams needed to "step up" against Woodville to win the flag. "You can only play each other game after game, but we've played seven games at this time of year, and I think that's something we've lost our focus on," Leppitsch said. "I think a lot of people haven't factored in the fact we haven't won a lot of these football games and that the focus is still the same. "I think if we can focus on taking it to another level, it will give us the opportunity to win a game like this." Rams key defender Luke Brown had 20 disposals in an impressive performance for the club. "I thought Luke was outstanding again, he was a standout and led his side really well," Leppitsch said. "We just need the boys to step up and keep playing as they were." Woodville will come to Norwood Oval to face South Adelaide in a must-win clash next Saturday, with the winner to have an opportunity to win the flag. The Rams haven't won the league since 1954. Find In the Game on Apple Podcasts, Google Podcasts or SpotifyQ: How to select a specific element from a subset of an array? I have a question about arrays which is based on my C# and the answers I found are not based on the C#. This question is written in an simplistic manner, but it is a good example of what I am asking about. I have an array of objects, and I have a loop that iterates through this array and iterates over each element. List commands = new List{"push 'item1'", "push 'item2'"}; foreach (string a_command in commands) { string[] a_objs =

Pathological variants of Hodgkin's disease: a study of the Stanford classification. Two hundred and twenty-eight cases of classic and variant Hodgkin's disease were analyzed by the Stanford classification, to determine the incidence of each type and the influence of pathological variables on the prognosis. Mixed cellularity disease was the most common form (53 per cent). Classical nodular sclerosing (NS) (6.4 per cent) was the second most common variant, followed by lymphocyte depletion (LD) (9.5 per cent), lymphocyte predominance (LP) (9.5 per cent), lymphocyte rich classical (LC) (8.0 per cent), lymphocyte rich NS (1.8 per cent), pleomorphic (PL) (3.6 per cent), Sézary's (3.6 per cent) and monomorphic (MO) (0.9 per cent) variants. Compared to other studies in the literature, the incidence of PL and MO variants was relatively low. Although the prognosis of all variants did not differ from that of other patients with Hodgkin's disease, a significant number of patients with NS (58 per cent) and LD (80 per cent) variants had both unfavorable prognostic features (nodal involvement of greater than 5 cm and low stage) and poor prognosis (5-year survival of 38 per cent and 52 per cent, respectively). These data suggest that a major shift from the classic HL classification to the Stanford classification is warranted.Analysis of the classes of neuropeptides present in the rat pre-Bötzinger complex. The pre-Bötzinger complex (pre-BötC) of the rat is a brainstem network that generates the intrinsic central inspiratory rhythm. Using univariate and multivariate data analysis, we have identified three classes of neuropeptide, all of which are present in the same neurons. First, we demonstrate that endogenous neuropeptide Y (NPY)-immunoreactive peptides (NPY-IR) and co-localised by immunofluorescence at least three types of NPY-IR neurones, second, these neurones co-localise NPY with the neurokinin B-type receptor (NK-1R) and the calcitonin gene-related peptide (CGRP) receptor (CGRP-R1), and third, they are partially co-localised by immunofluorescence with the CGRP
